December 1, 2025: Letter to Donald Trump

Dear President Donald J. Trump:

You are a tiny-minded and petty child. I am so incredibly embarrassed for having ever advocated on your behalf in front of my friends, my family, and the general public.

Since you have revealed your true face to America, I have become completely disgusted with the state of America and your administration.

You are a disgrace to the title 'American.'

Your methods of accomplishment and achievement are disgusting and are terrible examples to set for others in the country and across the world.

If you had any sense within that gigantic ego of yours, you would be embarrassed and disgusted with your self as well.

You are a disappointment to say the least.

Your time as an American 'hero' is long over and you are now carrying yourself as a true villain to the rights of the people that you supposedly represent.

I would counsel you to change your course, but I can already see that you are hopelessly entangled in your own net of lies and stubborn bull-headed stiff-necked ways.

To anyone that ever sees this message, Donald Trump is not an American icon of anything else besides what not to do with your time on this earth.

For someone that had every opportunity in this world, he chose the worst options every single time.

I could continue this message endlessly pointing to one example after another of your failures, but you would only gain more pleasure in the negative attention.

I just wanted to write this message publicly to state that you are a horrible representative of our country.

With extreme sincerity,
Chris Carlin
